

Intergenerational Pedagogies
for Adult Learning

What is the project INTEL about?

The Erasmus+ project 'Intergenerational Pedagogies for Adult Learning' facilitate intergenerational pedagogies in the framework of adult learning and serves the needs of adult educators and learners.

What has been done so far?

Kick-off meeting

The consortium met face-to-face in May 2022 in Cyprus and started work to address the needs of adult learners of different ages in Europe, who are facing different barriers in learning.

Project Result 1 Interactive Training Curriculum

The partners have been developing a curriculum output and constructing a learning programme based on innovative methodological and pedagogical intergenerational approaches. The Curriculum will be flexible and adaptable to a wide range of contexts, in order to support the effective training of diverse target groups on intergenerational learning.

INTEL website

The website of the project has been released and includes basic information, deliverables and outcomes of the project, as well as its latest news and developments. It will also host the Online Learning Platform, which will provide both target groups and stakeholders with a common space, tools and resources to obtain knowledge and practical experience related to the issues regarding intergenerational learning.
